

The Empowered View

This film project was derived by the idea of visiting different cultural hubs in New York City. As I noticed through my exploration, each place whether it be Harlem, China Town, or any place in which a large category of people live has similar indicators. Placed by the city or chosen by the people I choose to display them side by side to showcase their specific qualities

